General Description of the Purkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hun In use rear of the institute, at the distance of one hum-dred bed, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the hundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants. The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large codar reservoir containing fire hundred barrels, brought from a never-fading spring of pure cold water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ran," a self-acting machine of cast Iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the water-works is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream falling from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half is diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dressing room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising daught (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

To Persons out of Employment. NEW PICTORIAL WORKS, Just published by R. SEARS, and for sale at No. 128 Nassau street, New York.

MERICAN GIFT BOOKS FOR 1851 .wanted to circulate the following new and beautifu orks, (retail price, $2 50 per vol.) A new and complete PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA;

PICTORIAL HISTORY OF CHINA AND INDIA; with a descriptive account of those countries and their inhabitants, from the earliest period of authentic history to the present time. In which the editor has treated not only of the historical events, but also of the manners, customs, religion, literature, and domestic habits of the people of those immense empires.

The embellishments are about two hundred, and of the first order, illustrating whatever is peculiar to the inhabitants, regarding their dress, domestic occupations, their mode of agriculture, commercial pursuits, arts, &c. They are accurate, and each one has been made expressly for the work.

The volume forms a large octave, containing between five and six hundred pages, printed in the best style, and on good substantial white paper. It is furnished to agents, handsomely bound in muslin, gilt, or leather, as the purchaser may prefer, at a very liberal discount, when quantities of not less than trenty copies are ordered at one time.

THRILLING INCIDENTS OF THE WARS OF THE UNITED STATES; comprising the most striking and remarkable events of the Revolution, the Freuch war, the Tripolitan war, the Indian war, the second war with Great Britain, and the Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $2.50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

Mexican war; with three hundred engravings! Retail price, $\frac{2}{3}$ Op per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible men as agents, who are well known in their own counties, towns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sendivg $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the wholesale cash prices.

(ERIGSSON LINE)

Have resumed their operations for the year with increased means of accommodating the trade between Philadelphia and Baltimore, in the most-regular and expeditious manner, and at their former materially reduced prices, being, on dry goods, hardware, &c., only 10 cents per 100 pounds, and but half the price charged by other lines.

Persons wishing to avail themselves of the facilities and moderate prices of the Line, are advised to give explicit and positive directions for sending their goods to the Ericsson Line, and they should be particular to possess themselves of the receipts which are invariably given for their goods. In those are stated the price charged for transportation; and it will prove a protection against the double rates exacted by other lines, who have no published rates.

Goods destined for the Weet, South, or other places beyond Baltimore, forwarded promptly on the day of their arrival, with every care and attention, free of all charge whatever for this service, in the shape of commissions or otherwise.

WASHINGTON, May 16.

QUEEN ANNE'S GREAT-GRANDMOTHER. [Concluded.]

Years had passed on, when some disputes prose-it is never too late or too early for law disputes—about the property of her first hus-band, the brewer. This made it requisite for her to have recourse to legal advice and assistance, and chance so determined it that she was recommended to a young barrister of Lincoln's Inn, who was thought by some to give a fair them, as much as the promise of rising one day to eminence in his feetly sane moments. profession. The young man, of whom a few more sagacious spirits ventured to predict such favorable things, but who was little known in general, was Edward Hyde, the future histoseries of events which still strike us as being amongst the most wonderful recorded in Eng lish chronicle. The business of the brewer's relict being of a complicated nature, and protracted after the usual fashion of all law proceedings, it made many visits requisite to her legal adviser, in the course of which she was often accompanied by her daughter Frances, with whom the young barrister incontinently fell in love. The young lady's affections were quickly won, and there were points in his favor with her parents, though he was deficient in the grand requisite, fortune. To make some amends for this, he was the nephew of the celebrated Sir Nicholas Hyde, was fast rising to eminence in his profession, and could plead the same political opinions as the very loyal and devoted Sir Thomas, although he did not as yet carry them to the same excess. At all events the knight's consent to their union must have been obtained, for we hereafter find him be queathing all his property to his daughter. Troubled times now came on. The king raised the standard of civil war at Nottingham, where he was speedily joined by Sir Thomas, who rendered good service to the royal cause, and in consequence was set down by the Par liamentarians in the roll of inveterate malignants. His hall in Buckinghamshire was burnt and after many hair-breadth escapes, upon the execution of Charles, he fled, first to Antwerp, and afterwards to Beda, where he died at the advanced age of eighty-one, in the year 1657. Having thus followed the old gentleman to his grave, we return to his descendants, supposing lways this Sir Thomas was really the father in-law of Hyde, and that there was no other knight or baronet of the same name. There is some mystery in the matter, which the young counsellor himself was at no pains to clear up He simply states in the autobiography that he married the daughter of Sir Thomas Aylesbury, who succeeded to his father's estates.

For about two years after the death of Charles the First, Hyde remained in the island of Jersey, where he amused himself with composing the great history, which has done more towards making him known to us than all his services in the royal cause, or than even his subsequent alliance with the house of Stuart. How he afterwards exerted himself in bringing about the restoration, and rose to the highest dignities of the State, belongs to another chapter, and need not be recorded in this place. It is sufficient to observe, that he became Lord Chancellor, in which situation, notwithstanding his eminent abilities, he contrived to make himself unpopular with all parties, and even to lose the favor of the King, whom he had served with so much zeal and talent. The fact is, he was too austere and unbending to be a favorite, especially at a ourt like that of Charles the II., which not a little resembled that of Milton's enchanter

Comus. It was now that the King's brother, James, fell in love with Anne Hyde. His first effort was to seduce her; failing in that, he contracted an event could not be long kent secret and on coming to the Chancellor's ears greatly excited Charles, who was less sensitive about the royal lignity than his Chancellor, behaved with great the young lady's indiscretions, used his best infuence to soften the resentment of the Queenmother, and compelled James to acknowledge the wife whom he had basely denied and even

THOUGHTS ON INSANITY.

From an unpublished manuscript by Hy. L. Harvey. Insanity, the result of an undue preponderance of one portion over other of th faculties, is seldom recognised as such, unless the inequality which produced it has arisen during the advancement of life, and a change from what they had been has become observable in the habits and propensities of the subject. Some people are crazy from their birth— that is, their minds were never properly ba-These are held accountable for their acts; while those whose misfortunes or habits have caused destruction or disease to faculties pirates. Moral responsibility is generally supposed to cease whenever mental action is disturbed, and the sequence of ideas becomes irregular to such a degree that the individual is incapable of discriminating or determining the true connection between cause and effect, or of forming consecutive opinions relative to external objects The law, however, appropriately makes this distinction-that where this derangement of the faculties of the mind is voluntarily induced, or the means which produce it are voluntarily adopted with a knowledge of what will be the effect, the individual, though not accountable for acts committed while in that state, is held responsible for consequences resulting from them, as much as though committed in per-

This may be done innocently, and in ignorance of the effects they are calculated to produce, but far more often deliberately, and with a full knowledge, taught by personal experience of what will be the effect The consequences of the insanity thus produced cannot be so readily predetermined. What has been its peculiar character on one occasion is no certain criterion to determine what it may be another, or under different cir cumstances. The person, therefore, who has had evidence of the intoxicating, or the insanity-producing power of such drinks, is without excuse for using them in a way to produce that effect; and can make no complaint against the law for holding him strictly accountable. nor justify himself for damage done by him while in such a state of voluntary insanity.

> A MILLIONAIRE'S FEAST .- A Paris letter ves this account of a dinner given by Baron Rothschild to Navazez, at which were present only twenty-eight guests, the flower of the French aristocracy In the first place there was the splendid service of Sevres porcelaine, which belonged to the unfortunate Marie Antoinette, and which was bought by Rothschild for 150,000 francs. Besides this enormous price, he still pays an annuity of 10,000 francs to the person who consented to give it up to him. During the repast, the whole service of the table was changed four times, the last being of silver and gold, worked by the most celebrated artists of Europe. was almost impossible to tell by what end, by what side to take hold of the things, the use of which almost disappeared beneath the material and the workmanship, both so precious as to make of most ordinary articles veritable works The knives, for instance, were so ornamented, so carved, that it was quite difficult to

The excitement on seeing two bodies dang ling high in the air was most intense; some of the crowd assembled were calling out for the police; and two or three, more courageous than the rest, got on board one of the ships to demand an explanation, and with the determination to take the culprits into custody. The explanation was duly given, and a hearty and general laugh was the result. The seamen were only performing a custom of the Greek Church, usually on Good Friday, by stuffing an effigy itation. General Order to the Army. Soldiers! Those who fied so cowardly from Cardenas, before a handful of you, intend again to tread on the soil which your valor defended so effectually. HAVANA, April 80, 1851. Here follows the proclamation, or circular, of La Concha, addressed to the authorities of the island. He enjoins quiet and calm upon all, and it is evident that he was a little fidgetty

when he wrote it. He says:

It has come to the knowledge of the Government that preparations are being made for a new incursion of the pirates, similar to that which took place at Cardenas last year. They propose, without doubt, now, as at that time, to seek the defenceless towns and disturb the order that reigns in this beautiful part of the Spanish dominions. But the loyalty of its innabitants, and the valor and discipline of the troops, and the measures taken by government, are a sure guarantee that their destruction will immediately follow the news of their landing. You must endeavor, then, that the news of this invasion shall not produce any alarm in the district under your command.

To exterminate the pirates, whatever may be their number, it will not be necessary to have recourse to extraordinary measures; the ordinary means of the government are more than sufficient. Every disposition that shall cause a deviation from the usual order of things will produce uncasiness and disquietude amongst the peaceable inhabitants, and might cause bu-siness to be interrupted, which would be a real loss to public and private interests. DEATH OF AN EDITOR .- We regret to state that Richard B. Gooch, esq., so long and favorably known to the public as the editor of the Southern Planter, died, after a severe illness of a few days, at the residence of his mother, near this city, on Tuesday last. Mr. G. was a man of fine education, of handsome talents, and of a very amiable disposition. He obtained a considerable reputation by a series of letters written during a sojourn of several years in Europe, and originally published in the Richmond Enquirer. He was one of the best reporters, on the old plan of giving the spirit and substance of a speaker's remarks, (an accomplishment requiring much higher mental attributes than the present system,) we have ever known. His death is much regretted by the fraternity, and the community in which he was born and had resided from his birth. He was buried on Wednesday, with military honors, by the Artillery company, of which he had been an officer, and was an honorary member.-Richmond Daily

> Gen. Scott.-It cannot have escaped the otice of those who pay the slightest attention to politics, that General Winfield Scott is fast coming a most prominent Whig candidate for the next Presidency. It may happen that indiscreet friends may injure his chances for the nomination by thrusting him forward immaturely, but unless something of that sort is done, the hero of many wars stands an excellent chance of being the candidate of the Whig party in 1852 for the highest office in the gift f the people. - Cumberland Civilian,
